Website Privacy Statement

London X-Ray Associates recognizes the importance of protecting the privacy of visitors to our website.

- London X-Ray Associates collects anonymous information about how visitors use our website. Our primary goal for tracking this data is to improve the reliability of our website and improve the information we provide. We do not share this information with third parties.
- When completing a survey, requesting information, or submitting a form, you may be asked to provide personally identifying information, such as your name or email address. This information will only be used to fulfill the specific request and will not be shared with third parties unless clearly indicated.
- Any requests for personal clinical or financial information will only be used to fulfill the specific request and will not be shared with third parties unless clearly indicated.
- Some sections of our website may depend on the use of cookies to function properly. Cookies are used to make it possible for us to provide these services. We do not share this information with third parties unless clearly indicated.
- We do not allow third parties to use cookies to track the pages that you visit on our website.
- London X-Ray Associates makes no guarantees as to the privacy policies of pages that lead you to 3rd party websites. Those organizations are separate and distinct from London X-Ray Associates and have their own privacy policies. We are not responsible in any way for how any third party collects, uses or discloses your personal information, so it is important to review any third-party website prior to providing your personal information to them.